ANNIE LOUISE CARY is now said to be engaged to one of the Lorillards.

A YOUNG MAN recently died in New York from pyemia, caused by decayed teeth.

In the Guitau trial is finished before Thanksgiving there will be additional reasons for giving thanks.

JUDGE FOGELER was one of the nine men in the New York Legislature in 1876 who voted in favor of giving the woman a ballot.

It has been discovered that J. Howard Wells, Jay Gould's blackmailer, is a commissary who defrauded the Government of about $3,000,000, and then went to Europe during the war.

A MAGAZINE devoted to dentistry says that in the United States alone twelve million teeth are extracted annually, or "one to every five persons in the United States." The amount annually squandered on teeth is $1,000,000. A half a million of gold is used every year to fill teeth.

HORACE GREELEY was born in 1811, and the following noted persons were also born in the same year: Charles Sumner, Wendell Phillips, Elihu Burritt, Harriet Beecher Stowe, Fannie Fern, Edgar Allan Poe, Dr. J. W. Draper, Fannie Kemble, Noah Porter, President of Yale College; Horatio Seymour, Alfred B. Street, the poet; and William Page, the artist. Dr. Phillips, Mrs. Stowe, Dr. Draper, Fannie Kemble, President Porter, Horatio Seymour and Page reached their 70th year.

IN the December issue of the North American Review an article will be published giving the opinion of several eminent surgeons on the professional treatment of the late President Garfield. Dr. William A. Hammond believes that the President did not have the best surgical treatment, and that the wound was not necessarily fatal. Dr. John Ashurst, of Philadelphia, on the contrary, thinks that his medical attendants did the best they possibly could under the circumstances. Dr. J. Marion Sims, of New York, asserts that death was inevitable, on account of the spinal injury, and the wonder is that he lived so long. Dr. John T. Hodgson, of St. Louis, also takes the affirmative, and considers the President living six hours after being shot inconceivable.

The White House.

The White House is nearly ready for President Arthur. It is expected that he will occupy it by the 1st of December at the latest. The east room will have an entire new set of furniture, richly upholstered in old gold. The wood work will be of modern pattern and elegant designs. Some pieces will not be upholstered, but will consist of carved designs on the native wood. The lambrequins and curtains will harmonize in color with the upholstery of the furniture. The old carpet will be replaced. It is not worn very much, and the only objection to it is the old-fashioned pattern. It will be replaced by a new one, and will not look out of place amid the modern and elegant surroundings. The walls will be covered by one of the handsome designs of wall paper which are now so fashionable. The ceiling will be refinished. The color which gives the room its name will be preserved, but in place of the dull, heavy green the beautiful shade known as Nile green will prevail. The furniture will be of the latest design, upholstered in raw silk, and a handsome carpet and window curtains will replace the dusky articles that have so long done service in that room. The grand piano, which was so much in the way, will be removed to one of the rooms up stairs. The red parlor is also to be entirely refitted with new furniture and a carpet of bright, handsome velvet one, and this room will be one of the most attractive in the house. The only change in

will be to freshen up the carpets and furniture and repolish the ceiling where necessary. No new articles of furniture will be placed in this room as the present furniture is in a very good condition. The private and state dining rooms will remain untouched. In the corridor outside of these rooms a new carpet of bright red color will replace the old one. This was done at the suggestion of the President. In the private rooms up stairs there will be no new furniture or carpets. The old furniture will be upholstered anew where necessary and the carpets brightened up. When the new furniture and carpets are placed in position the rooms will present a very handsome appearance. President Arthur will not occupy the bedroom where General Garfield lay sick so long. He has selected for the one just across the hall, overlooking Pennsylvania avenue and Lafayette park. This room is undergoing a complete renovation. The workmen will go into it next Monday. The walls, now papered with blue and gold, are to be scraped and new paper put thereon. The stationary washstand in it, from which the water was cut off two years ago, and the pipes of which are soldered up, is now to have water introduced into it again. A bath room and wash stand will be made ready for the President in the communicating room, the door of which can be closed so securely as to prevent all danger of infecting his sleeping with sewer-gas.

Eating Before Sleeping.

Man is the only animal that can be taught to sleep quietly on an empty stomach. The brute creation resists all efforts to coax them to such a violation of the law of nature. The lion roars in the forest until he has found his prey, and when he has devoured it he sleeps over until he needs another meal. The horse will paw all night in the stable, and the pig will squeal in the pen, refusing all rest or sleep until they are fed. The animals which chew the cud have their own provision for a late night slumber, and sleep peacefully until morning. Man can train himself to the habit of sleeping without a preceding meal, but only after long years of practice. As he comes into the world, nature is too strong for him, and he must be fed before he will sleep. A child's stomach is small, and when perfectly filled, it disturbs his sleep, follows naturally and inevitably. As digestion goes on, the stomach begins to empty. A single food in it will make the little sleeper restless; two will wake him; and if it is heaped again to repose, the nap is short, and three folds put an end to the slumber. Paregoric or other narcotic may close his eyes again, but without either food or some stupefying drug it will not sleep, no matter how healthy it may be. Not even an angel who learned the art of minstrelsy in a celestial choir can sing a babe to sleep on an empty stomach.

We see the oft-quoted illustration, "sleeping as sweetly as an infant," because this slumber of a child follows immediately after its stomach is completely filled with wholesome food. The sleep which comes to adults long hours after partaking of food, and when the stomach is nearly or quite empty, is not after the type of infantile repose. There is a difference in the world between the sleep of refreshment and the sleep of exhaustion. To sleep well, the blood that swells the veins of the head during our busy hours must flow back, leaving a greatly diminished volume behind the brow that lately throbbled with such vehemence. To digest well this blood is needed at the stomach, and nearer the fountain of life. It is a fact established beyond the possibility of contradiction that sleep aids digestion, and that the process of digestion is conducive to refreshing sleep. It needs no argument to convince us of this mutual relation. The drowsiness which always follows the well ordered meal is itself a testimony of nature for this interdependence.
